German Student Visa Requirement (Germany Program only)

American, Canadian, Australian, and citizens of a few other select countries may travel to Germany for up to 90 days simply with their passport. IFX's partner will help you to apply for your student visa during this 90 day period while in Germany.

A requirement of the German Foreign Office mandates that each applicant must open a specific type of bank account with a German bank (Sperrkonto) and deposit a stipulated amount of funds into the account. For University students, the amount is 861 Euros times either 6 months or 12 months, depending on your intended stay. You may then only withdraw 861 Euros per month once it has been opened. The intension is to force students to manage their money properly while studying in Germany. For language school students the amount is 947 Euros times either 6 months or 12 months, depending on your intended stay.

For year long language school IFX participants, participants must be able to make a deposit of 8523 Euros just prior to their 4th month of the program. This sum accounts for the approximate 9 months remaining in the visa term. For University students, 10,332 Euros is the required amount for the locked bank account also needed to be on deposit just prior to their 4th month in the program.

These funds will be in your account in your full control and 861 Euros (University students) or 947 Euros (language school students) may be withdrawn each month at your will.

In some cases, the visa appointment may be scheduled in early December or early January. IFX participants may not under any circumstances miss their visa appointment as a result of returning home for the holidays. If this occurs, IFX reserves the right to charge an additional $1000 for having to reschedule visa appointments.

It must also be understood that IFX reserves the right to contact the German authorities to cancel their visa during the program should the participant exhibit poor attendance to the German language institute or German University. In this case, the participant would be sent home without any program refund.

These financial requirements of the German government are in addition to the IFX program fees, which must be paid according to the program payment schedule.

These requirements outlined above are in addition to all other visa requirements and while intended to provide guidance, actual requirements of the Foreign Office at the time of applying for the visa may vary somewhat based on their discretion and policy. For a complete list of visa requirements, please contact your local German Consulate.

Please sign below to confirm that you have read and understand these requirements.
